

Wireless Usage Policy

Free wireless (wi-fi) internet access is available at the Fairview Heights Library. The wi-fi is filtered. By choosing to use this free service, you agree to abide by our Computer & Internet Use Policy. This policy states the limitations of internet access and your responsibilities for using that access in a legal and responsible manner. Before you can fully access the wi-fi, wireless users must comply with the library's Computer & Internet Use Policy by clicking the button that indicates the patron has read the terms and conditions of this policy and understand its significance. These regulations may change without notice.

Library wireless users are cautioned that wi-fi access within the library is a public network. All transactions, files, and communications may be vulnerable to unauthorized access and therefore should be considered public and not secure.

The library assumes no responsibility for the safety of the equipment or for laptop configurations, security, virus issues or data files resulting from connection to the library wi-fi.

Wireless Printing access is not available. If you need to print, your options are:

- email the files to yourself, or
- save to a flash drive, or
- Utilize the library mobile printing options

Access to a public Internet computer would allow you to print your files. Utilizing the mobile printing option will allow you to access your files from the sign-in station.

No guarantee can be made that you will be able to make a wireless connection. Please check with the manufacturer or supplier of your equipment. Library staff is not able to provide technical assistance.

Although attempts have been made to make wi-fi widely available throughout the building, you may encounter some "dead" spots. If you have any problems with reception or connectivity, please move to another location within the library.
